Project Management Academy (PMA)

MARCH 9-11, 2015

ARTBA Headquarters, Washington, D.C.

This intensive two-and-a-half day program, ideal for new or prospective project leaders, provides both substantive theory and practical application of project management principles for road and bridge building construction project managers. Among the topics covered are planning & scheduling, resource management, effective client relations, management & leadership, economics of safety and construction documentation.

Up to 16 ARTBA Professional Development Hours available.

P6® Scheduling Academy

ARTBA Headquarters, Washington, D.C.

The highly-acclaimed P6® Scheduling Academy provides in-depth instruction on Primavera Project Planner (P6®) software and other “tricks of the trade” to help efficiently track key project aspects, such as people, materials, operational benchmarks and payment schedules. This unique program uses hands-on and effective training designed specifically to help industry professionals, including project managers and supervisors, adapt the P6® software to their own needs. The academy will be led by nationally-recognized construction management expert Dr. Jay Newitt of Brigham Young University. Dr. Newitt will guide students through the complex principles of Critical Path Method scheduling, which can help with timing and resource allocation during the delivery of complex transportation construction projects.

Up to 16 ARTBA Professional Development Hours available.
